Generally Speaking

“Sometimes our biggest obstacle is our own fear of success.” –
Christina Engela

“Respect by fear isn't respect... it's fear.” – Christina Engela

“One of the eternal truths of life - people who ask ‘do you know who I am?’ will always, given half a chance, tell you.” – Christina Engela

“Life is a two way street – and sometimes there are collisions.” –
Christina Engela

“If you stick your head in the sand like an ostrich, pretending you don't exist – why get upset when the world agrees with you?” – Christina Engela

“The best way to piss off your enemies is to out-succeed, out-laugh and outlive them.” – Christina Engela

“You can only really appreciate being up when you know what it's like to have been down.” – Christina Engela

“Yesterday’s defeat is tomorrow’s victory.” – Christina Engela

“Turning the other cheek often only gets that slapped as well.” –
Christina Engela

“Is there any good left in the world? And if there is, can you still find it in the places that matter? Why is it that the only places I see it now, is in the graves of the victims, and the tears of those who mourn them?” -
Christina Engela

“Usually, people who ask ‘do you know who I am?’ don't have a clue themselves.” – Christina Engela

“It's amazing, the increase in grammatical errors in proportion to the level of hatred in the content of hate mail.” – Christina Engela

“There's no point in arguing with an idiot – save for exposing their stupidity in their own words.” – Christina Engela

“Knowing who you are is more valuable than having ten ‘friends’ who don't even know who they are, but who judge you anyway.” – Christina
Engela

“Some people do everything, some do something, many do nothing – which is bad enough – but the worst of the lot are those who break down what others have built.” – Christina Engela

“There are enough real enemies and threats in the world without having to invent imaginary ones.” – Christina Engela

“Wilful ignorance is something to be ashamed of, not proud.” – Christina Engela

“Knowing who you are is half the peace of accepting yourself.” – Christina Engela

“Usually, only the living can learn from their mistakes.” – Christina Engela

“Advanced weaponry, victories in battle and space travel do not an advanced species or civilization make.” – Christina Engela

“Some might claim that like the secret of flying is missing the ground, the secret to immortality is simply not dying.” – Christina Engela

“It would seem that the right to equality and human rights is far more an exclusive thing than an inclusive thing.” – Christina Engela

“Many times we refer to people who express hate or behave in a barbaric, savage ‘inhuman’ way as ‘animals’, but on closer inspection we can clearly see that this is in fact, an insult to animals.” – Christina Engela

“Those who say ‘it’s just an animal’ are really saying more about themselves than they realize.” – Christina Engela

“I believe most people are good, even if only deep down – and even if you have to dig a little. Some people tempt me to pick up a shovel and actually find out.” – Christina Engela

“Money is not respect. Neither is power. And if people respect you for your money or your power, it isn't you they respect – but the money or the power.” – Christina Engela

“Freedom isn’t hard to lose – but it’s a hard thing to win back once it’s been lost.” – Christina Engela

“Dominating others is not equality.” – Christina Engela

“Humans, on the whole, are intelligent and resourceful and always have been. If our species has been around a million or more years, why are we so disinclined to believe that our ancestors could have built cities 10,000, 20,000, 50,000 or even more years ago?” – Christina Engela

“If a science, such as archaeology or palaeontology, has reached a point where it rejects apparent evidence not on its own failings or lack of merit, but solely on the basis that it challenges the current perception of the past or upsets a carefully constructed framework or timeline, or view held by a ruling body – it has become a belief-based system, not an evidence-based system, and has abandoned reason and scientific principle altogether.” – Christina Engela.

“If we refuse to accept knowledge because it frightens us, we will never grow. If we give in to fear, we will never outgrow hatred.” – Christina Engela

“Disagreeing with someone does not necessarily mean that they have to be enemies or opponents.” – Christina Engela

“The truth of the world is that in every group you will find some good and some bad people – which is why I am keenly aware that no group is ALL bad, just as no group is ALL good.” – Christina Engela

“You cannot reason with unreasonable people.” – Christina Engela

“Love yourself. Someone has to. Sure, some people will hate you for who and what you are – but they're not perfect either.” – Christina Engela

“There's something truly disturbing about children who delight in cruelty, and who threaten to kill – and parents, teachers and adults who look the other way.” – Christina Engela

“Life is far simpler than we sometimes are willing to admit. It's us that makes simplicity complicated.” – Christina Engela

“To make a fresh start, you need to make a break with the past. You cannot move forward while the past holds you back.” – Christina Engela

“The very worst thing a parent or teacher or other care-giver can do, is to ignore bullying, to ignore the plight of a child being bullied, or trivialize or even blame a child for the bullying actions of others.” –
Christina Engela

“Disturbingly, in today's world, the opinion of an idiot is expected to be taken as equally valid to the expression of a scientific fact.” – Christina Engela

“When I die, there will be people who will misgender me out of spite, hatred and anger because they hate what I am and what I represent.

There are those who will dead-name me (if they ever knew my old name), because they feel it will undo any of the things I have done to become the person I am today, or to try to hurt me in some way, since they haven't the courage to do these things to my face while I live. It won't.

I will be dead and gone – victorious and free – and the people who cared, who loved me, and called me 'friend', will remember me as they did – and those who hated, opposed and feared me, will make it obvious that I meant less than nothing to them – which says, as far as I'm concerned, far more about them than it does of me.” – Christina Engela

“If you look outside for fulfilment and happiness, it is a search that will never end because happiness lies within. If you can't be happy by yourself alone in a room, how will being with somebody else make you happy? You will never find anything outside that will make you happy and keep you happy.” – Christina Engela

“Peace, shalom, salaam – to all – in our homes, in our streets, in our countries, on our world, and most importantly, in our hearts and minds – not just for one day of the year, or two, but for every day, and for every year, always.” – Christina Engela.

“Sometimes, the inhuman presents itself in troubling and unsettling ways, as human.” – Christina Engela

“Some people are only worth engaging in debate because they demonstrate your point for others – even if they never ‘get’ it themselves.”
– Christina Engela

“For the world to change for the better, it has to be MADE better. It won’t happen by itself.” – Christina Engela

“I used to worry about whether people would like or accept me or not. Now, older and wiser, I only concern myself with whether or not I will like or accept them. Do this for a happier life.” – Christina Engela

Love & Relationships

“Freedom is being whole on your own and not needing somebody else to complete you.” – Christina Engela

“Slavery of the heart, oh Love – a prisoner of will thou art – proof that love, while blissful, can oft also be Hell. Demonstrative definition thou art, that love can be strategic as well!” – Christina Engela

“Just saying 'I love you' can mean the difference between nothing and everything. Some people say it while they stab the person they say it to – some say it to the one holding the knife.” – Christina Engela

“Hugs are so vital a thing that there should never be so few of them that you can count all the ones you've had.” – Christina Engela

“Make sure you date someone who always makes you want to dance, with or without music.” – Christina Engela

“Regardless of what language it is said in, ‘I love you’ stays beautiful, and two hearts beating together make the same sound. It is the language of Love.” – Christina Engela
