Choose your Hero

There is 21 character in Overwatch, each of them with their own strengths and weaknesses. As the beginner you can't really know how to pick a right one, and some of you will probably chose them based on their looks.

It is better to do your research and chose the best character for you!

Firstly, think of the role you would like to play.

- Offensive hero – for persons who put killing ahead of everything
- Defense hero – for persons who want to make strategies throughout the game
- Tank – for those of you who want to stay alive and fight your opponents
- Support player – you can stay out of line while still enjoying the game and helping your team.

Beginning

You have chosen your hero, and now what? You need to remember that you need to start simple. Not every character is good for you to start – some of them are actually really difficult to manage.

We recommend you starting with Soldier 76, since he is probably the best one to begin with. You can also chose Reinhardt, Mercy or Bastionare good choices.

You will learn different tactics soon enough and try with a different character, but play it safe at the beginning.

Team structure

Team work is very important part of this game! You and your team don't really stand a chance if everybody is on their own. Let's say, for instance, that you are in the team with at least 2 more people and all of them want to play support. How fast would you lose?

Random players who are just starting with the game will probably just go around trying to kill everyone. That way you won't get a good chance to play as a team, plus you will have to play something you perhaps don't want to. Now, you don't want to be one of this beginners! Choose your path wisely.

Recommended composition for your team is: one offense hero, two defense heroes, one tank and one support. This will make your team strong, and also help in building an amazing strategy.

Tips & Strategies

Killing is not everything

If you think you are going to win with no strategy and just by going around and killing, you are wrong. In this game, there are three modes:

Control - both teams are trying to control zones for more than three rounds

Point Capture – one team must be offense and the other one defense

Payload – while the one team attacks the mobile target, the other defends it

Whatever you do, you need to remember; killing will not make you win! What will is the strategy. We suggest you try to keep your enemy as far away from their goal as you can.

Positioning

The Overwatch isn't a game where you can just run away to your enemy and fight with him. This game isn't like many others and you need to think a bit more about positioning. In this game, the pace is slower and you can't just whizz throughout the arenas so easy. You can't just find your way out and run away without any damage. That is because this game is more a tactic and less run and gun. So we advise you to build your strategy!
