Loving Llamas

Have you ever met a llama? They have tiny heads with huge eyes. Their ears are shaped like bananas. Llamas are hard to forget.

Maybe you saw a llama at a farm. Maybe one visited your school. Spending time with a llama makes it easy to want one. Llamas are fun!

They aren't like other pets. They won't fetch like a dog. They won't curl up in your lap like a cat. Llama owners think they are as smart as dogs and cats. They are also very friendly.

They will come when they're called. They are good with children. They can be walked on a leash. Some people even go jogging with their llamas!

Raising llamas is hard work. You'll have to have land for them to run. Plus, their hay can cost more than gerbil or rabbit food. But you might make some money selling llama wool.

Before you buy a llama, learn all you can about them. Visit llama farms. Talk to llama owners. Make sure to read all you can about this unusual pet. This book can help you get ready.

DID YOU KNOW?

In the United States, 31,000 people own llamas.
