He flew into the garden with a big "whoosh",
and landed on a sturdy bush,
eyes big and round and yellow,
this fluffy friendly fellow.

"Hello, my name is Harold.
I'm a tawny frogmouth owl.
I never frown or scowl,
and when I open my mouth wide,
you can see deep down inside,"
said this fluffy friendly fellow.

"The colour of my feathers is tawny,
doesn't mean I'm skinny or scrawny,
but a whiter shade of brown."

He was tired, he was sleepy,
but the other birds didn't give a hoot.
The sun was bright, it was midmorning,
and he sat on his branch,
yawning!

The wind rocked the branch.
He nodded his head,
and he wished for a quiet, warm shed instead.
